gatesnfences.com

Gatesnfences is an American website designed to promote a gate and fence selling business. The website allows the users to see their company, view their products and purchase their products. Overall, the website has a very poor user interface, with countless different usability issues. As a result, it is not aesthetically pleasing, inefficient to navigate and inaccessible to a variety of users.

Why our Custom Made Aluminum Driveway Gates are Awesome looking, stronger, better material and workmanship is just part of our success.

Aluminum driveway gates are becoming more and more popular because of how strong and durable they are. The wide choices for design and style is also another reason why this type of gate is preferred by many people over wooden or iron gates.

Here are the reasons why a lot of homeowners choose to put up custom made gates made of aluminum.

1. Cost : Aluminum gates are less costly than steel gates at least nowadays as 10 years ago they were a lot more expensive than Steel gates. If you like an elaborate and very decorative gate, the cost of wrought steel would be more, but with aluminum, the same design can be within your allotted budget.
2. Weight: Aluminum custom made gates are very light compare to Steel gates, making them a lot easier to open compared to those made of iron. This may be just as important point when it comes to automatic gates, aluminum only lets minimal wear and tear on the rollers and hinges sliding gates. Because materials are not heavy, the automated opening system will surely stay in good condition for a longer time period and in some cases extending the life of the gate openers by 50%.
3. Durability: Since aluminum is not damaged by rust or corrosion, your gate can serve you well for many years. All our gates designs are made from solid plate aluminum that is 1/2 to 1" inch thick. A gate made of solid aluminum rods are a bit heavier but way lighter and so we are able to use thick material which makes our work stand out.
4. Appearance and Options. When talking about sheer beauty, Our aluminum gate are so elegant as the materials that we use in most cases are TWICE thick than a metal gate . You also have a wide choice in terms of colors as we offer one of the largest select of Powder Coat Oven Baked in the net, larger selection styles, and custom sizes.
5. Maintenance: Maintenance is out of the question Aluminum is the way to go, since it does not corrode, unlike with wrought Iron (steel), you are not required the Maintenance to up keep your gate no sanding, priming, re-painting for many ,many,many years to come. With aluminum custom made gates, you can save time, money, and effort in maintenance This gates are capable of enduring different types of elements without flaking, chipping, or cracking.

Why our Custom Made Aluminum Driveway Gates are Awsome looking, stronger, better material and workmanship is just part of our success

Aluminum driveway gates are becoming more and more popular because of how strong and durable they are. The wide choices for design and style is also another reason why this type of gate is preferred by many people over wooden or iron gates.

Here are the reasons why a lot of homeowners choose to put up custom made gates made of aluminum

- 1. Cost: Aluminum gates are less costly than steel gates at least nowadays as 10 years ago they were almost expensive than Steel gates. If you like an elaborate and very decorative gate, the cost of wrought steel would be more, but with aluminum, the same design can be within your allotted budget.
- 2. Weight: Aluminum custom made gates are very light compared to Steel gates, making them a lot easier on open compared to those made of iron. This may be just as important when it comes to automatic gates, aluminum only lets minimal bar and wear on the rollers and hinges sliding gates. Because materials are so light, the automated opening system will surely stay in good condition for a longer time period in some cases extending the life of the gate opens by 50%.
- 3. Durability: Since aluminum is not damaged by rust or corrosion, your gate can serve you well for many years. All our gate designs are made from solid plate aluminum that is "1" to 2" inch thick. A gate made of solid aluminum rods are a bit heavier but way lighter and so we are able to use thick material which makes them last longer.
- 4. Appearance and Options: When talking about sheer beauty, our aluminum gate are so elegant as the materials that we use in most cases are TWICE thicker than a metal gate. You also have a wide choice in terms of colors as we offer one of the largest selection of Elements Coat Overlaid in the net, larger selection styles, and custom sizes.
- 5. Maintenance: Maintenance is out of the question! Aluminum is the way to go, since it does not corrode, unlike with wrought iron (steel), you are not required the Maintenance to keep your gate from needing priming or painting for many, many years to come. With aluminum custom made gates, you can have the same look and maintenance. This gate is capable of enduring different types of Elements Coat Overlaid without fading, chipping, or cracking.

Aluminum The Material of choice
Aluminum: Aluminum is a soft and lightweight metal with a dull silver-gray appearance. Aluminum is about one-third as dense as steel or copper and is malleable ductile, and easily machined and cast, and has excellent corrosion resistance and durability due to the protective oxide layer. It is also nonmagnetic and non sparking and is the second most malleable metal (most being gold) and the sixth most ductile. Whether measured in terms of quantity or value, the use of aluminum exceeds that of any other metal except iron and it is important in virtually all segments of the world economy. Aluminum alloys form vital components of aircrafts and rockets as a result of their high strength to weight ratio. Aluminum was selected as the material to be used for the apex of the Washington Monument, at a time when one ounce cost twice the daily wages of a labourer.

Modern Entryway Gate
Aluminum was, when it was first discovered, extremely difficult to separate from the rocks it was part of. Since the whole of Earth's aluminum was bound up in the form of compounds, it was the most difficult metal on earth to get, despite the fact that it is one of the planet's most common. The reason is that aluminum is oxidized very rapidly and that its oxide is an extremely stable compound that, unlike rust on steel, does not flake off. The very reason for which aluminum is used in many applications is why it is so hard to produce.

Modern Entryway Gate
Recovery of this metal from scrap (via recycling) has become an important component of the aluminum industry. Recycling involves simply melting the metal, which is far less expensive than creating it from ore. Refining aluminum requires enormous amounts of electricity; recycling it requires only 5% of the energy to produce it. A common practice since the early 1900's, aluminum recycling is not new. It was, however, a low-profile activity until the late 1980's when the exploding popularity of aluminum beverage can finally placed recycling into the public consciousness.

Modern Entryway Gate
Electric power represents about 20 to 40% of the cost of producing aluminum, depending on the location of the aluminum smelter. Smelters tend to be located where electric power is plentiful and inexpensive. China is currently (2004) the top world producer of aluminum.

Modern Entryway Gate
After peaking in popularity in the lavish homes of the 1920s then nearly disappearing from new construction during the whimsical vinyl-sided cottage era, Wrought Aluminum is making a phenomenal come back over wrought iron, now that Aluminum is cheaper to produce and the new techniques available to make it look like wrought iron with the benefit of maintenance free. Designers and builders attribute the resurging demand to current trends in architecture featuring Mediterranean, Southwestern, and French country style homes. Also credited are improved production methods that render the metal applications more durable.

Modern Entryway Gate
The topic of gating is increasing. The blur between the public space and the private realm of the homeowners' association and its management is surfacing. However, land developers are very aware that gating is assumed to favor increased property values, and the town officials are aware of the associated increases in the town's property tax base.

Modern Entryway Gate
There are more than seven million households (about 6 percent of the national total) behind fences or walls, according to the Census Bureau's 2001 American Housing Survey. The Census Bureau estimated the percentage of people living in gated communities had shot up by 11 percent in the West. The homes behind the walls, the survey revealed, were "upscale," and "mostly white developments."

Modern Entryway Gate
Built in the early 1930s, the first gated communities in Los Angeles were upper-scale developments in Rolling Hills and Bradbury. Now, gated communities represent almost 50 percent of the market in the desert resort areas near Palm Springs.

"As real-estate commodities, they are tailored to fit to specific prospective buyers. Gated communities are located within every kind of middle class and upper-class neighborhoods, and are now available for every market segment continuing to increase.
